

CLINTON SELLARS SCHOLARSHIP

Clinton Sellars was a strong believer in education and, therefore, a strong supporter of Western Texas College in Snyder, Texas. He believed Western Texas College offered an excellent opportunity for anyone desiring to further their education. It's smaller class size and personal contact between instructor/student made it an ideal college. His love of agriculture was enhanced by his friendship with instructors, Jim Judah and Bob Doty of Western Texas College. They were most helpful and thoughtful of Clinton at all times, and especially during his long illness.

Clinton Sellars was born in Scurry County, Texas, on April 25, 1940, to Clint and Ruby Sellars. He was a lifelong resident of the county. He died on February 28, 1994, at the age of 53, from cancer.

Clinton graduated from Hobbs High School in Hobbs, Texas. Although, he never attended Western Texas College, his daughter, Stacie, and son, Chad, both graduated from Western Texas College. A fact he was most proud of.

It was only fitting that a scholarship in his memory and honor should be established, as he would be very proud to assist someone in attaining an education at Western Texas College.

Thank you very much.
